

Communication and Language:

Act out to a group of peers a known story using costumes and props that I have made myself

Milestone 1: Children join in with familiar stories, rhymes, and repeated phrases, using simple words or short phrases to act out parts of a story. They engage in imaginative play with provided props and costumes, listen to others in group storytelling, and begin to take on simple roles with adult support.

Milestone 2: Children retell familiar stories in sequence to small groups, speaking in sentences and beginning to project their voice. They take on roles and interact with others, selecting or creating simple props and adapting their language to suit different characters.

Milestone 3: Confidently acts out a known story to a group of peers

- Uses clear, expressive language and full sentences
- Maintains a role throughout a performance
- Independently creates and uses their own costumes and props
- Adapts storytelling with added detail, expression, or creativity

Listens and responds appropriately to peers during the performance
